Hello Dear Friends at Stockwell Good Neighbours,

Welcome to our first Stockwell Good Neighbours magazine which I have sent to all our members that I have addresses for; enjoy, and contribute if you would like to.

I hope you're managing to keep in good spirits during our necessary isolation at this time. Unfortunately, more of our friends have been affected by COVID-19 this week, many battling the effects at home and several in hospital. We are beginning to hear of people we know who have died and anxiety and fear is a real issue for many. We keep in our prayer Jerry, our much-loved community police officer who visits the club regularly and is in hospital, and we pray for the souls of Agnus Smith whose basic funeral is at 10am on the 15th April, Ken Ralf and Oswald, may they rest in peace and rise in glory. Amen.

The weather has been lovely most of this week and with the decline in traffic I can hear more birds singing. I hope for those who have a garden you have been able to enjoy it and for those who don't, I hope you've opened your windows looked up to the blue sky and breathed in the fresh air for a while, it certainly seems fresher! Despite these difficult times as we adjust to a new way of living there are silver linings - improved air quality, more time to reflect on life and put our affairs in order, great generosity and community spirit, a deepening appreciation of our health service and all the essential workers such as shop workers, refuse collectors and postal workers. Clap again on Thursdays at 8pm. People seem to be praying more and uniting in their faiths. We have suddenly decided we will embrace technology after all, as it keeps us connected, we make do with less, and maybe this time is giving us a deeper gratitude for life and the people we care about. As Mae West once said: "You live once and if you do it right, once is enough "

There is no need to struggle without food as there are volunteer schemes ready and waiting to help; check out any leaflets you have received from Age UK. If you need emergency food supplies or have any enquiries contact the helpline 02073466800. If you need to call me, my number is 07729785843. If you're on WhatsApp let me know, and with your permission I can include you in a Stockwell Good Neighbours WhatsApp group to help you keep connected.

We continue to keep each other in our thoughts and prayers every day, particularly on a Monday at 7pm, when we dedicate time to remembering Stockwell Good Neighbours members, volunteers and supporters.

This Easter Hymn is very apt I think: "Because he lives, I can face tomorrow, Because he lives, all fear is gone, Because I know he holds the future, And life is worth the living just because he lives"

Have a Blessed Easter, With love and prayers, Lesley people will forget what you did,

but people will never forget how you made them feel.

Denis Costelloe says: "I was born in Churchtown, Co Cork and came to London at the age of 21 in 1960. My first job was cleaning lamps at Kings Cross and St Pancras stations for the first three months. Next, I joined Royal Mail as a Postman at Jamaica Road, Rotherhithe SE16 with wages of £8.50 a week. I bought a second hand bicycle for 30 bob (£1. 50) at a local Sunday market which was a necessity. I lived with my married sister in a flat at 34 Clifton Buildings, Christmas Street, SE1, paying £2 a week. I sent £2 to my widowed mother in Ireland, leaving me with £4.50. Of course, in 1960, the cheapest Bus fare was four old pence and a Kit Kat bar was three old pence. Like all emigrants I hit the Irish Dance halls - my local venues were The Shamrock, which could get a bit rough, and the more sedate Harp at New Cross. Admission to dances was 3 shillings, or 15p in today's money. Money seemed to go much further then.

I was fortunate that I was taken by a friend to St. Monica's Hall in Hoxton Square where a Pioneer Abstinence Group were staging a play called "The Down Express". I was keen to have a bash at Amateur Dramatics and I fitted in like a glove accent wise to the part of a farmer. Of course, a greater attraction was meeting people from all parts of Ireland. Emigration was at its peak; the men, mainly entering the construction business, worked and drank hard, on good wages. The women in the main went into the nursing profession. London, of course, had terrible cold, dark, and thick foggy days during this period. But the upbeat of going to Dances and Pictures and meeting so many beautiful Irish girls compensated a great deal for these conditions.

Perhaps the greatest joy of all was going back home every summer to the fresh air, fresh food and the welcome one received. Life seemed so much simpler, an age of innocence, an age of us country exiles away from home in a big city like London adjusting to a different way of life. But there were the downfalls as well, and the dreams of many never materialized. London can be a lonely self-destructive city and sadly some fell by the wayside.

I was one of the lucky ones. I found so many great friends, I found love, a family, grandchildren. And I thank God for those graces my life to date."

A poem sent in by a reader

Wakey Wakey

Went to bed (long outgrown Ted)
Once sleep came easily. Instead,
I woke at one (with dodgy tum)
More pills, and then to dreams succumb

But woke at three, to have a wee (shouldn't have drunk that fennel tea).
Then woke at five (yes, still alive).
Thoughts swirl and jostle to survive.

Awoke at six, ate Weetabix
(A splash of whisky in the mix).
So dozed 'til eight, now sleeping late
To a lullaby of birdsong - the day can wait!

*Language... has created the word "loneliness"
to express the pain of being alone.
And it has created the word "solitude"
to express the glory of being alone.

How is everyone getting on? We will all have our own ways of coping, and some will find it easier than others. As long as we all think about & pray for each other and wish each other well, we are not entirely alone

Some Tips to cope with anxiety from NHS England...

Understand your anxiety

Try keeping a diary of what you are doing and how you feel at different times to help identify what's affecting you and what you need to take action on.

Challenge your anxious thoughts

Tackling unhelpful thoughts is one of the best things we can do to feel less anxious.

Make time for worries

If your worry feels overwhelming and takes over your day, setting specific "worry time" to go through your concerns each day can help you to focus on other things.

Shift your focus

Some people find relaxation, mindfulness or breathing exercises helpful. They reduce tension and focus our awareness on the present moment.

One of the best, yet hard things we can do to combat stress and negativity is practice our ability to choose one thought over another: seeing the good in what you have. So, let's take a minute to ponder on what we can be grateful for and positive about right now? Hope you have a great day, Vera (volunteer at mental health drop in)

Look after yourself. Be informed. Be sensible. Follow the advice from trusted sources only (www.nhs.uk). Switch off the noise of social media and 24-hour news.

Look out for each other. We love the way communities are coming together to help each other out. That's amazing stuff. Stay safe. Be practical. Stay connected in as many ways you can.

Call us if you think you or someone else needs more support. Not health stuff. Use 111 for that. However, if you are really worried about someone else or even worried about how you might cope yourself, then get in touch.

A reading from the holy Gospel according to John 20:1-9

It was very early on the first day of the week and still dark, when Mary of Magdala came to the tomb. She saw that the stone had been moved away from the tomb and came running to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one Jesus loved. 'They have taken the Lord out of the tomb' she said 'and we don't know where they have put him'.

So Peter set out with the other disciple to go to the tomb. They ran together, but the other disciple, running faster than Peter, reached the tomb first; he bent down and saw the linen cloths lying on the ground, but did not go in. Simon Peter who was following now came up, went right into the tomb, saw the linen cloths on the ground, and also the cloth that had been over his head; this was not with the linen cloths but rolled up in a place by itself. Then the other disciple who had reached the tomb first also went in; he saw and he believed. Till this moment they had failed to understand the teaching of scripture, that he must rise from the dead.

Prayers Contributed by Readers

Lord, I rejoice that all authority has been given to you in heaven and on earth. No principality or power, no human institution or invention, no infirmity or illness can prevail against you.

I rejoice that you have given your disciples authority to heal sickness. From the common cold to terminal cancer, I take authority over the spirit of infirmity and forbid it to prevail against me.

I stand on your word which says, no evil shall befall me, nor shall any plague, come near my dwelling. Dispatch your angels to encamp around about me and protect me from all harm.

Your words says you will bless the righteous with favour, you will surround him as with a shield. I ask that no disease would come near me that the magnitude of your presence around me be so great that nothing will be able to touch me except that which comes from you.

Because my body is the temple of the holy spirit, steer me away from destructive habits that make me vulnerable to weakness and infirmity. I want to worship you- body, soul and spirit. May the hedge of protection you have placed around me serve as a testimony to others of your power, your protection and your love. In Christ's name, Amen
